

SOCIETY NEWS and Gossip

ENENT the recent persistent rumors of an engagement existing and shortly to be announced between Miss Katherine Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi, Washington society has been on the qui vive all week.

In the same connection society is taking note of the numerous international marriages which have had their inspiration in Washington.

The latest one is that of Miss Helen Seagrave Ffoulke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ffoulke, of Massachusetts avenue, who is to marry Emmanuel Havenith, the Belgian minister to Persia, Thursday. Their romance had its inception and setting in the shadow of the Capitol, for Mr. Havenith won his bride only after two years of persistent wooing in and about Washington.

Miss Ffoulke is a womanly girl, and has a wide circle of friends who have vied with each other in doing honor to the bride-elect and her fiancé since the interesting announcement was made some weeks ago.

The wedding, which will take place Thursday at noon in the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Ffoulke, on Massachusetts avenue, will deprive the Capital City of two particularly well-liked young people. Miss Ffoulke will be missed by hosts of friends who have known her since childhood, and the young diplomat, during his few years of residence while connected with the Belgian legation here, has endeared himself not only to his colleagues in the Diplomatic Corps, but to society in general.

Mr. O'Connell will be the officiating clergyman, and Miss Louise Foraker, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Foraker, will be Miss Ffoulke's only attendant. Last evening Senator and Mrs. Foraker were hosts at dinner in honor of the bridal party, and later the party attended a large reception given by the Persian minister, General Morteza, Khan, in celebration of the Persian New Year.

An interesting and significant fact about the Diplomatic Corps in this connection is the large number of American women presiding over the various foreign embassies and legations. They are Mme. Jusserand, wife of the French ambassador, whose parents lived in Boston, though she was born in Paris; Baroness Speck von Sternburg, wife of the German ambassador, formerly Miss Lily Langham, of Kentucky; Baroness Moncheur, formerly Miss Charlotte Clayton, wife of the Belgian minister; Senora de Calderon, wife of the Bolivian minister; and, until the recent death of her husband, the Norwegian minister to this country, Mme. Hauge, formerly Mrs. Todd, of Louisville, Ky., acted as chataleine of the Norwegian legation.

And almost without exception these international marriages having inception or setting in or about Washington have been peculiarly festivities still prevail fast and furious, and a prominent woman was heard the other day bewailing the fact that these days were no more a season of rest. Together with the charity at always devolves upon those interested, twice as hard at Lent as at any other season except Christmas, and the constant round of parties, receptions, and calls incumbent upon one in the social life here was quite out of breath.

HAVANA, under Governor Magoon's regime, is becoming quite a rendezvous for society folk. Gen. and Mrs. A. E. Bates, who went down recently with Mr. and Mrs. John F. Stevens as far as Jacksonville in the Stevens private car; Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelms Eno, Mrs. Clarence Edwards, wife of General Edwards, and her daughter, and Mrs. Clover and Miss Clover, wife and daughter of Admiral Clover, U. S. N., are among the Washington consorting themselves there at present.

Bates was at home to her friends in the governor's palace yesterday afternoon. She and the general will remain in Havana as the governor's guests for a month longer. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, who are also the governor's guests, will, however, leave there early this week. They have been the objects of considerable attention socially, and Mrs. Stevens expresses herself as delighted with Havana, its people, the carnival, and especially the old palace on the plaza in which Governor Magoon makes his home. She was especially interested in the throne chair, with its carvings of crowns and coats-of-arms. The chair is stored away in the palace chapel, and neither it nor the little oratory is used.

The American minister, Edward Morgan, entertained at luncheon, Friday complimentary to Mrs. Clover and Miss Clover, and Friday evening Governor Magoon entertained the entire Washington party and several others at dinner.

Havana, at this rate, will soon rival Palm Beach most favorably as a place of winter residence.
